

Personal Profiling

Understanding
Myself to Unlock
My Future

Vedant Saxena

What Does Personal Profiling Mean to Me?

- It's the process of understanding myself deeply

- Helps identify my interests, values, strengths, and weaknesses

- Acts as a mirror to reflect who I am and where I want to go

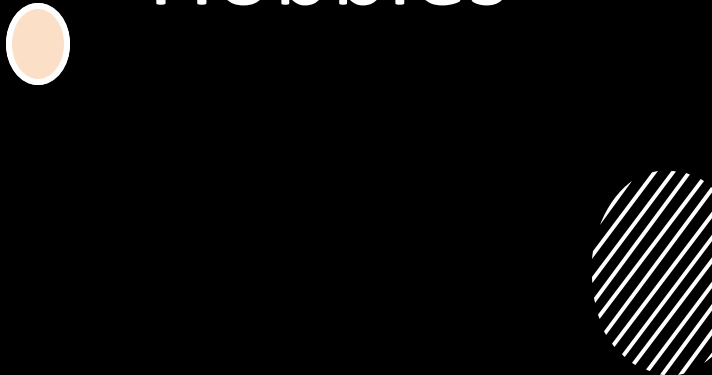

Knowing My Interests

- Helps align passions with career goals
- Makes learning and work more enjoyable
- Examples: coding, design, research, etc

Tracking My Skills, Strengths, and Hobbies

Skills: [e.g., programming, communication, leadership]

Strengths: [e.g., analytical thinking, creativity, perseverance]

Hobbies: [e.g., reading, sports, music, gaming]

Helps choose the right career path

Enhancing My Personality

- Continuous self-improvement
- Confidence building
- Communication and interpersonal skills development
- Helps in both personal and professional growth

Unlocking My Potential

- Personal profiling guides me in making the most of my abilities
- Shows areas I can improve
- Helps build a growth mindset

Self-Awareness and Goal Setting

- Self-awareness is key to setting realistic and meaningful goals

- Understanding my capabilities and limits

- Helps plan achievable short-term and long-term goals

My Goal Setting Plan

Short-Term Goal:
Appear for GATE,
GMAT, or GRE

- If I score 650–800:

- Consider IIT admissions or pursue Master's abroad

- If I score below 700:

- Improve and reattempt or apply through GATE
